The Rothschilds and their History.

William started and, as if by accident, soon found himself in front of the longings of the English stache. This official snon-made his appearance, a servent carrying a vallee behind him. In conversation while widking on the strict, William told the attricte that Rothschild had given leave of alterned to most all of his clefts, as there was nothing in the world for them to do; he calonged upon his guide that even his chances for playing a game of cless with his fright calarged upon his grief that even his chances for playing a game of chess with his friend would now be poon, and, at hat, as if hit by the thought for the diest than, he remerked, how interesting it would be if he could accompany the attache for a few miles out of town and play lifting game in the carriage on the road, just for the orbitly of the thing. The attache would not have been an Englishman, if anything old, out of the commen course of things should not have plea of him. The attachement was at tonce made that William should meet the attache at a costain corner at a designated ource made that whitem should meet the at-tache at a certain corner at a designated hour that evening, take a seat in the car-itage and paly a game. William immedi-ately returned to the banking house such tall James Rothschild of his success. He received a short note written in cypher, precise verbal instructions where and how precise verbal instructions where and how to posseed upon arriving at London, weaprovided with na abundance of money and told to leave no means unitied to accomplish his purpose. The young men then purchased a board and chessnen such as mariners use at sea and proceeded to the designated corner, where he had not long to wait. The retache's carriage drawn by from swift post-horses, drove up, halted but a minute. William got in and oil they statted. At the gate, when the sential nuticed the British Minister's corriage and the special passport for beavers of dispatches, he made no further inquiry, and a moment later the two triends had Paris behind them and by the aid of a lantern were arranging the chessmen for this extraordinary game. Daring the game it was agreed that William the classifier to 1015 extraordinary gamb. During the game it was agreed that William should accompany the attache all, the way to Calais, where they would put said from whence the diplomat could rail to Dover in whence the diplomat could rail to Dover in a boat always in readiness for a messanger to his minister. Thus they sped on talking and playing and occarionally sleeping. And the Englishman failed to ender that during one of his sleep measures the will William had quietly taken the passport and slipped it Into his own packet. They were yet some miles from Calais, and taking a lasty meal at an inn while changing horses, William succeeded by a heavy bribe, and same plantshe story, in whating the position to his plan. An horr or so later, being in the hidst of a dense forest and on a very bad part of the road, the coach by the ing in the midst of a dense forest and on a very bad part of the road, the coach by the merest accident as it seemed, rolled into a hole and broke an axle. William was ready to help; he would take one of the horses and ride at the top of his speed into Unlaise and sead another carriage, while the attacho and the driver night remain and walt.—
The proposal was immoratily accepted and William rode off. Arrived at Calais, he lurried to the quai or dock, found the part in waiting, to doctored his assessort, was

From Dover he united as fast as horses could carry him to London, where he arrived about toid-night and proceeded at once to the residence of Nathan Rothstand, who had already refired for the night. William desired to be to'en immediately before the banker, but the servants declined. before the banker, but the servants declined, saying no one was allewed to disturb the the lest of their master. When, however, William insisted that he was just from Paris on a most important mission from James Rothschild, they believed it an extraordinary occasion and one of them went up stairs to wake him. Nathan, on being told of the cause of the disturbance, entered the young man to be brought to his bedside— William cottend and handed him the expher, Nathan tooked it over and then asked, as it nothing had happened to ripple his equantity: "And how did you contrive that quickly to come to London?" William told his story, and when he had finished Nathen called for paper, pen and ink. He evidently made William tell his tale only to gain time for deliberation as to what was before the banker, but the servants declined gain time for deliberation as to what was best to do to save the maney in the yault in Paris, for the cypher of his brother James Paris, for the cypher of his brollier James was a request for advice to that elbed, giving also news of the unexpected progress of 'Napoleon in the south of France.—
Nathan wrote a few lines, folded, scaled and addressed the letter; "Lord Castleresgh, His Majesty's Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs," and handing it to William he said; he said:

he said:

Lord Castlereach is said to have been astonished on reaching his desk in the morning tished on traceing his desk in the infring to find a polite note from Nathan coaveying the unboked for intelligence of Napoleon's successful advance on Paris; in the meantine Nathan himself, by his ngents and underlings, so influenced the money and stock markets, that before his Lordship had are nearlied meant the first bis Lordship had stock markets, that before his Lordship had even resolved upon the first step for the British government to take mader the circumstances, the House of Rothschild had "discounted" the event to an extent that even the loss of the treasure at Paris would have been made up by the gains at London. Late in the day the attache arrived, but the "exclusive information for the government," of which he was the beaver, had already become the town topic. He was never again employed on a diplomatic errand.—William returned safely to Paris and informed James Rothschild of what his brother Nathan had said. REWPORT DAILY KEWS. WEDNESDAY, March 11, 1868.

Washington Romore.

There is a great deal of nervousness about things at Washington, and all are anxious to know the aspects as the time approaches for the real beginning of the impeachment trial. In the latest correspondence we find references which have been aftent for a few days past, an abstract of which may prove satisfactory to our readers.

A story was affont, which, strange to say, gained considerable credence, to the effect in Parliament, and that there is a strong de that Secretary McCalloch had lendered his sire to avoid complications that will lead to resignation, and that it would be accepted any hostile feeling between the two coun by the President.

Another report was circulated to the effect that the case of Adjutant General Thomas would come up in Cabinet meeting Tuesday, and that he would be recognized by the entire Cabinet, and would then issue a general order as Secretary of War.

The correspondent visited Secretary Mo-Culloch Tuesday morning in order to ascertain if there was any trut's in the rumor of his resignation. In a firm and decided tone, Mr. McCulloch deglared that not one word had passed between himself and the Presideal as to his resignation, and that the stories to this effect were without foundation. He said be lest no intention of teadering his resignation while the present it had been reported that the Treasury Department had refused to honor drafts drawn by Mr. Stanton as Secretary of War, eight towns and small places remain to be heard from, which are about equally Republican and Democratic. It is probable that Hardman's majority will be about 3,009. The whole vote will probably exceed 72,000, the largest vote ever policit in this State.

Arw Hampshire Election !

Great Republican Triumph!

The Republican majority in the House of Representatives will probably be about 70 -- a small reduction from the Union strength

The Executive Conneil will stoud as last year-four Republicans to one Democrat. The Senate will probably stand as last year, nine Republicans to two Democrats.

NEW ORLEANS.

New YORK, March 10.

A New Orleans special says: We have further complications under 11 meach's rate It has been charged that Gue, Joshua Brker committed perjuty in taking the test outh. He is said to have put obstructions in Bayon Technin 1883, to prevent the Union troops approaching. He is to be arrested by Commissioner Sherman to-mor-

Similar charges are to be preferred against other of General Hancock's appointers. A report published in the rebal newspapers that the President has just telegraphed that he will relieve Ocneral Hancock and put him in command at Washington, gladdens the Union men, who hope that Mowe: will be put in command here.

The Times warms the rebels against my demonstrations, similar to that which was awarded to Jefferson Davis and Gen. Hancock, on arcount of its effect North. The rebel boards of registration are to be appointed with a view to defeating the Comstitution. The panie about city money still contin-

THE ELECTIONS IN TENNESSEE. Mammis, March 9. Lafayette and Hardeman counties have gone Democratic. The town of Bolivar gave only one vote for the Republicans: Among the manicipal officers elected here Saturday, were four colored persons. Lesthan four hundred whites youd the Radical ticket. It is said that a number of defeated candidates will contest, the election.

John M. Campbell, local editor of the Avalanche, was committed to jail to-day by Judge Hunter, for contempt of court.

Washington Evening News.

The following are Washington speciale, he first being from a Democratic source : Several Radical Senators have expressed themselves lately to the effect that the impeachment articles are not shillclent to convict the President, Some twenty-two Senators, including Democrats, are said to he of the opinion, and an effort is to be made to initiate some plan of dismissing the case for want of cause for action . A project is on foot to start a paper in Washington to support the President, with a capital of $200,00n.

J. C. Fremont is in Washington.

Thad Stevens is exceedingly feeble. The President has determined on a ourse with regard to the war Department, which is very likely to end in further embarrassments, if not in a direct conflict, and to add to the certainty of his conviction by the Schale. In pursuance of his deletmination not to recognize Secretary Stanton in any way, he requires all communi cations with himself to be made direct, with out passing through the regular channel of the War Department. On Saturday Le sent back a percel of papers forwarded from Gen. Grant's Headquarters through the Department, which did not even beer Mr. Stantons name, but the usual indorsement by order of the Secretary of War. He then sent a request to have the papers forwarded direct. He has established Gen. Thomas as Secretary of War aid inter im at the White House so far as to treat him in every respect as Secretary of War de firete, though ne orders have yet appeared as being issued by his authority. When they do new questions will arise.

An individual is in Washington, in the Interest of the "Johnson defenders," who recently attempted to secure the pussage of bill by the New York Legislature protecting the interests of houses of ill-fome in New York city.

The Cubinet met at-moon to-day, Gen. Lorento Thomas being present as Secretars of War. Since suppose that the other members of the Cabinet will agree to see agaize him, and that he will establish a war department in some other building than that in which Mr. Stanton is established - draying the mails sent him from the Pos Office Deportment and his requisitions answeigh by the Treasury Department.

Thal Stevens reported from the Counmittee on Reconstruction to-day a hill to admii Alabama into the Union. It will come up to-morrow for discussion and will probably be passed by Thursday.

CHRONIC CATARRH.

Why entertale this leathennic directs when relief escribe obtained fil. We meet those every day who are Parrage in the head are in a nurtly decomposed nassed corrupt matter that they are objects of illgust to themselves, and of pity to those with whom they associate.

Chronic Cotarrh agoally affects the head, fances and broughlattabes. It is levariably caused by humoral or inflammatory blood, by which the mucous memoffusion of elseld matter. If it be produced by Sero fold in the blood it is almost certain to end in Consamption, unless speedily tured, because it is imposgible to entirely present the matter from consindown the Bronchist into the 4th vesicles, and such i the executating, or scabiling property of the matter, its tondact with the delicate Bulugs of the air-cells at once causes britation, and fastics the humoral prop ertics of the Mond to deposit therein Tubercles and Ulcers. Catarrh shoost shoays attends Consumption, and requently leads to it.

In Oxygenland Air we have a positive cure for this disease. The temely is taken by inhabition,breathed directly late the langs, and through then carried into the blood; thus ar coon as the blood will earry it, it reaches 22 parts of the system, decomposiing the impute matter in the blood and expelling it brough the pieces, and through the natural channels from the system. Thus you will see that the cause of the discuss is removed, and the disease itself now
